Throughout her high school career, she was an active member of the Politics and Diplomacy Club where she began attending national and international Model United Nations European Youth Parliament Conferences. She would go on to hold the Vice President position in the Academic Board of the 2010 Global Youth Summit, a youth conference trying to solve numerous international disputes and their probable solutions from European Youth's perspective. She is now a member of the European Youth Parliament Association of Turkey.

Sayen describes herself as a passionate young activist, who is aware of her world, and wishes to be the action of change, rather than solely an observing mind. She would love to share her ideas on women's rights on the global stage, while developing herself and collaborating with other fellow delegates in the conference.
